Re: Satisfied customer

We started our relationship with on site a year ago, when the business felt a need to upgrade our management team's computer skills. This of course in due time would be implemented to our staff in the restaurant. So the National Learning Department was tasked with finding a suitable service provider that would not only provide the necessary computer skills but also be flexible to the type of business in terms of training schedules (time and dates etc.).

Then through word of mouth heard about Onsite training, I made an appointment and never looked back since. Every person we have sent for computer skills with onsite has had great feedback regarding the content and the facilitators.

Here is a testimonial from one of Graduates who went on their Visio training:

"First few lessons from Beginners were boring because it was basic Microsoft Office stuff. But then the people at Onsite suggested that I go on to Advanced (good news to me). Advanced was not bad at all and the trainer knew what she was talking about and trained at a space that was suitable for me. The staff at "Onsite" were welcoming and accommodating."
